Merry Christmas and Happy 2005!

Dear Friends and Family,

Hope 2004 (it can't be) was a happy, healthy year for you. There is always 2005 to look forward to! I have really appreciated the thoughts and prayers that you have sent down South regarding my dad. He and my mom have been in Houston for a year to get his bone marrow transplant for leukemia. He finally had it in August from a "perfect match" anonymous donor and is doing remarkably well. We hope they can go home to Chicago in January.

We are all fine here in Charleston. Roy is still with MBT Lighting in product development. I was able to go with him to a trade show in Las Vegas- fun! I am still a part-time pharmacist with Eckerd's Pharmacy. They just got bought by a Canadian company and we are seeing some changes.

Daniel is in 8th grade at the magnet School of the Arts. He is into his theater "major" as well as skimboarding, skateboarding and scooter riding! Playstation II is also right up there in activities. He played soccer this season with the Cosmos.

Andrew is in 5th grade and will be trying out for School of the Arts for middle school. (in either band or vocal) He made SC Elementary Honors Choir this year and sang at a Charleston Symphony Orchestra performance with his chorus. (dad's footsteps?) His soccer team is the Thunder.

A word about Oscar, our dachshund- he gets to sleep with Daniel on even days and Andrew on odd days!

Well, another year, another newsletter! Hope to hear from you.

Love,
Sara and
All

How is retirement going? I thought about you on Male Day.
